

Chris Ross, CSP, CPLP

Safety Consultant
Anchorage, Alaska

Chris has been a performance consultant, trainer, lecturer and presenter for over 30 years.

Chris Ross has presented over a thousand training classes, workshops, seminars, keynote speeches and presentations. His dry-sense of humor, along with his unique story-telling skills makes his training sessions entertaining, as well as informative.

Chris has been a valuable asset to the SafeStart team since he joined us in 2007. He brought with him his certification as a DDI Master Trainer, and is also a certified facilitator for Franklin Covey; Development Dimensions International; Management of Aggressive Behavior. He is also a frequent contributor and columnist for "Alaska Contractor," "Council Prospector," and many other publications.

He served as the Director for NANA Training Systems, a multi-discipline training and consulting firm in Alaska with over 800 clients, since 1998. Chris has earned professional certification in Workplace Learning and Performance (CPLP) through the American Society of Training and Development and is additionally recognized by the Board of Certified Safety Professionals as a CSP and OHST. With a background in civil engineering and organizational development, Chris has over 30 years experience in human resources, safety management, risk management, project management, budgeting, and operations.

For bookings please contact:

Ruth Steeves, Events and Conference Manager

rsteeves@electrolab.ca

(905)467-4432 (direct)

(800)267-7482

*Electrolab Training Systems, P.O. Box 320 Belleville, Ont. K8N 5A5
Phone 1-800-267-7482 or Fax 1-613-962-0284*