Jack will help your organization build a winning safety team.

William "Jack" Jackson is the President as well as an Independent Safety Consultant with Zion Safety Consulting. "Jack" Jackson is chiefly responsible for organizational strategies, developmental programs, and the vision behind Zion Safety Consulting Inc. He originates from Tulsa, Oklahoma, yet attended college in Missouri at Lincoln University, where he earned a BS in Mechanical Technology, and was a 3 year letterman on the University's Football team. He completed Basic Training in Fort Knox, Kentucky while attending Lincoln.

Jack was formally employed for 19 years with Johnson Controls Inc. While at Johnson Controls he held several positions with the company. He began his career in the Production and Operations portion of the business. He later became involved with the Safety department, where he helped the local facility in Jefferson City attain a world class safety record. This facility reached 10 years without a lost time accident in 2005. This record is still standing today. They were able to attain this mark by training as well as changing the culture in which safety was practiced in the facility.

Jack relocated to San Antonio and joined Avanzar Interior Technologies in 2005, while the site was still under construction. His responsibilities included overseeing the construction safety phase of the project. Once construction completed he continued on to develop the safety system for the facility as well as the safety program manual for the facility. He set the tone early on for the direction of the Safety culture within Avanzar. He developed a work conditioning program to prepare team members to become industrial athletes.

Jack is also known as Coach Jack to some. After a failed attempt to make it into the NFL, Jack began coaching Semi Professional football for 6 years, working with two different teams. He led the Springfield Rifles to the National semi final game two years straight, and was named NAFL defensive coordinator of the year in 2002.

Jack used his experience working in the fast pace world of automotive manufacturing, his short military experience, as well as building championship quality teams on the football field to develop a safety concept that teaches participants of his courses that "Safety is always first".

"The 'I' in Team...The Star Within"

Jackson is also the author of "The 'I' in Team...The Star Within", a liberating interactive presentation designed to make participants look inside themselves through a five point process. It teaches that the growth of the team lays first within the individual stars on the team, and that each one must shine.
